

BIO

BARBARA CURCIO is a native New Yorker born and raised in Brooklyn. Living alongside different religions, ethnicities, and cultures taught her about a “wider world” and sparked a desire to see and learn more about it.

A love of art had her joining the Brooklyn Museum to take classes which led to a Fine Arts major in college. She pursued a career in advertising and had a freelance copywriting business.

After raising three daughters, Barbara reignited her love of art and photography by taking classes at The Palm Beach Photographic Centre with such notables as Raymond Gehman, Vincent Versace, and Douglas Ljungkvist.

She currently divides her time between West Islip, NY and Wellington, FL